

Join our Team at the Danish House in Palestine – Communications manager

Ramallah, Palestine

Two years contract with possibility of extension

Full time job - 40 hours per week

Are you a dynamic and passionate individual with a talent for communication, cultural engagement, and fostering connections? Would you like to work with inspiring individuals from the art, culture, and creative sectors in both Palestine and Denmark? The Danish House in Palestine is excited to welcome a new colleague who will lead our communication efforts and play a pivotal role in public engagement and fundraising. Become a driving force behind the creation of collaborative spaces for cultural organizations, artists, practitioners, and academics from Palestine and Denmark.

Position Overview: Communications Manager

As the Communications Manager, you will be at the heart of our mission to bridge cultures and ignite meaningful conversations. Your primary focus will be on developing and executing comprehensive communication strategies, and bringing the rich Palestinian art, culture, and ideas to light. In addition to communication, you will also take the lead in fostering public engagement and contributing to fundraising initiatives.

Key Responsibilities

- Develop and implement comprehensive communication strategies that foster engagement between Danish and Palestinian cultures.
- Create visually compelling content, manage social media platforms, utilize creative writing skills for reports and publications, manage events, conduct interviews, produce videos, and design posters.
- Lead a team of social media interns, freelancers, civil society partners, and volunteers across Palestine and Denmark.
- Effectively engage with media outlets to raise awareness of our initiatives.
- Collaborate on partnerships and donor relations, and support the grants acquisition process, including research, proposal development, and identifying funding opportunities.
- Collaborate closely with the Director of the Danish House to collectively achieve our goals.

Your profile

- strong communication skills and fluency in English and Danish (both written and spoken), Arabic language is not required but can be a valuable asset.
- A gifted team player, with a committed quality driven approach and more than willing to work across the different functions of a small civil society organisation, and you inspire others to do the same
- International experiences from the Middle East

- Demonstrate documented expertise in public engagement, communication across diverse platforms and media, as well as fundraising strategies.
- Showcase documented experiences in working with donor relations and acquiring grants.

The opportunity

Working with the Danish House in Palestine provides a unique journey into the heart of culture and collaboration. Immerse yourself in the challenges of a dynamic environment, even within a politically charged context where adaptability is crucial. Shape partnerships within the cultural, creative, and artistic realms. Engage with diverse audiences and drive impactful change through both public engagement and fundraising initiatives.

Applications will be accepted until September 15th. Following the application deadline, interviews will be scheduled in the subsequent weeks. This position offers a fulfilling two-year contract with the potential for extension. Your base will be our Palestine office, and we aim for you to commence work around November 1st (the date can be negotiated).

To apply, submit a merged PDF file featuring a captivating one-page cover letter and a detailed resume (both in English). Direct your application to Admin@dhip.ps, with the subject line "Application for Communications Manager."

The Danish House in Palestine is an independent Danish civil society organization. Our vision is to enhance mutual understanding and appreciation between Danish and Palestinian cultures while promoting values of diversity, openness, and tolerance.
